The 4th graders have transformed Mrs. Marnin's room into a tropical rainforest. The kids have built trees, ferns, flowers, and lianas (woody vines). They also built their own animal at home to add to the rainforest. The kids are making a Google Slide presentation about their animal to share with the rest of the class. They have had so much fun doing this while learning a lot about the rainforest.

Flat Stanley

All first-grade classrooms have embarked on the adventures of Flat Stanley! This fictional chapter book tells the story of Stanley Lambchop who was flattened by a falling bulletin board! Because of his condition, Stanley's family mails him to California in an envelope, versus a plane ticket, to save on travel costs.

Each WCV first grader made a flat version of him/herself to send somewhere in the United States. Host families are encouraged to send three or more photos of the flat character in its new surroundings. The photos are then posted to the Facebook page entitled STUART ELEMENTARY FLAT STANLEY. Pictured is Mrs. Plowman's class with their flat characters in the classroom and a photo of the students on their way to the post office to mail the letters.

Even though it's warming up, we are still bound to have some cold days!

Thank you for helping make sure the kids are dressed for the weather no matter what mother nature brings us!!!

Third graders learned about invisible forces. They learned about different types of bridges and support. Students were challenged to build bridges using only two sheets of paper (no glue or tape allowed). They had fun and learned that failure is an opportunity to learn. They watched where their bridge failed, and learned to put more support in that area. Great work, third graders!

Jurassic World Invades Stuart Elementary!!!

Every spring the WCV elementary second graders begin learning to write research papers by gathering facts from several sources including books and the internet. To involve our students' families in our curriculum, we ask that the students create a dinosaur at home. The only rule is they cannot use a premade kit. Other than that, the materials, designs, and type of dinosaurs are entirely up to the creativity and imagination of each creator. Wow! Are we ever impressed! Once again the second-grade families have made our hallways a prehistoric paradise!

Our dinosaurs will be on display for the students in our building to enjoy for the next couple of weeks. After that, they will become a traveling art display at the Stuart Public Library until the end of April. We hope you are able to check them out!
